CERTIFICATIONS

ORGANIC

Organic farming aims to produce food using natural substances and processes, helping to preserve natural resources in the long term.

Buying coffee with organic certification guarantees that no unnecessary chemicals or pesticides and no genetically modified varieties have been used on the farm. Furthermore, organic certification ensures full product traceability from bean to cup, and guarantees that the products have been segregated at all stages from non-certified products in order to prevent contamination of any non-organic residues.

FAIRTRADE

The Fairtrade initiative exists to connect farmers and workers to consumers, promote fairer trading conditions, and empower workers to take more control over their lives. The Fairtrade Mark guarantees that suppliers have received a price for goods that exceeds the cost of production.

For Fairtrade certified coffee, producers receive a social premium per pound of product, which must be spent on improving the community. The cooperative democratically decide on how it is spent to ensure the whole community can benefit from it.

Fairtrade has been shown to increase standards of living and reduce risk and vulnerability for farmers and workers.

RAINFOREST ALLIANCE

The Rainforest Alliance is a non-governmental organisation that promotes sustainable practices in agriculture, forestry and tourism.

They aim to improve livelihoods and well-being for farmers, protect endangered species, respect the rights of local communities and indigenous people, and use natural resources wisely, amongst other important principles.

Products that display the Rainforest Alliance certification have been audited by the organisation themselves and therefore meet the required high standards.
